

Untitled (3)

by Connor Stratman

I am the last speck of pollen.
We skip spring, always.
The end of my story
always involves at least one person metamorphosed
into an mirroring object.
You and I are the one Thing unlike the others,
and one of us with be
with the other, even till
the end of the age.