

*Driving Dallas
To Mayor Mike Rawlings's Task Force on Confederate Monuments*

by Reverie Koniecki

Code switching is undetectable through tinted windows. Little girls double step until they surpass their mothers, but never feel safe in Kessler Park. The bridge to nowhere twirls her skirt over the current underflowing of the Trinity River. In ten years, they say those banks will rival Central Park abracadabra: Alta West, Sylvan my 30. Truth is, monument or not, somewhere on Commerce, before things go really west, from state-to-statue-to statute,

Lew Sterrett's Justice Center
omnipresently swallows the whole

damn

trifecta.